EPITHELIOMA OR . KIR CANCER.

For seven years I suffered with a cancer on my face. All the simple remodies were applied to alleviate the pain, but the place continued to grow, finally extending into my tose, from which came a yellowish discharge very offensive in character. It was also inflamed, and amony ed me a great deal. About eight months ago I was in Atjanta, at the house of a friend who so strongly recommended the use of Swift's Specific that I determined to make an effort to province it. In this I was successful, and began its use.

The influence of the medicine at first was to somewhat aggravente the sore; but soon the inflamation was allayed, and I began to improve after the first few bottles. My general health has greatly improved. I am stronger, and am able to do any kind of work. The cancer on my face began to decrease and the alcer to heal, until there is no a vestige of it left—only a little scar marks the place where it had been. I am ready to answer all questions relative to this cure. Mrs. Joice A. McDonald.

Atlanta, Ga., August, II, 1885.

I have had g cancer on my face for some years, extending from one sheek home across the nose to the other. It has given me a great deal of pain, at times burning and itching to such an extent that it was almost unbearable. I commenced using Switt's Specific in May, 1885, and I have used eight bottles. It has given the greatest resief by removing the inflantation and restoring my general health. W. BARNES.

Knoxytile, lown, Sept. 8, 1885.

For many years I was a sufferer with cancer of the nose, and lawing owns sured for the use of S. 8.5. I feel constrained by a series of duty to suffering humanity to make this statement of my case. With the fourfeenth Socie the camer segan to heaf rapidly and soon disappeared, and for several months there has occors in appearance of a soc of any kind on my mose or face, neither as my nose at all tender to the touch. I have taken about two dozen beatles 8, 8, 8, and my somality cares, and I how that 8, 8, 8, effected the curre after every known remedy was tried and had fashed. Rougher SMEDLY.

Fort Games, Ga., May 1, 1865.

I had heard of the wonderful cures of Swift's specific, and resolved to try it. I Commenced taking it in April, 1881. My general health was much improved, yet the enteer which was in my breast contidued togrow slowly but surely. The bunch grew and tecome quite heavy. I felt that I must either have it cut or site. But it commenced electricing quantities of almost black, thick choost. It continues healing stound the edge until Februarry, when it was entirely healed up and well. Birry Woon. Cochesett, Plymonth Co., Mass., Jaly 18, 1885. Swift's Specific is entirely regenale, and semi-focure cancers by forcing out the impurities orom the blood. Treatise on Rhood Dress as mailed free. A Question.

Though sweer it be with sarving song
To soothe the sorrow of s well.
Or sound a note so bigs wall strong
It rose the world from p to to pole;
The singer knows a graver part
Than these which greet the outward sight—
Possession's pleasure in his art.
And ishor's keen and pure delight.

On his pule lips Necessity
Her famin; coul of fire has brid,
Since, thou, a the gift of song he free,
Its power impels its use displayed;
Earth's sins are latte to the clear eye,
Of every woe he feels the dart;
Earth's birdens on him seave lie.
His tears for overy grief must start.

And still this sympathy, so deep.
Holds with its attribute of pain
A drop of dew—to those who weep
The nobler joys shall come again.
To be, as he, divinely blest,
Although of anguish set apart,
Would'st thou, O friend, clasp to thy breast
The tiscrus that prece the paet's heart?

MARK TWAIN.

His Speech at the Typographical Dinner in New York—Reminiscences of His Cab-Printership.

Typothetæ, an association of New-Yorkers having more or less to do with types, commemorated the birthday of Benjamin Franklin by a dinner at Delmonico's, which was enjoyed by over

Mark Twain was there, and his text was, "The Compositor." This is what "The Chairman's historical reminiscences of Gutenberg have caused me to fall into reminiscences, for I myself am something of an antiquity. [Laughter.] All things change in the procession of years, and it may be that I am among strangers. It may be that the printer of to-day is not the printer of thirty-five years ago. I was no stranger to him. I knew him well. I built his fire for him in the winter mornings; I brought his water from the village pump; I swept out his office; I picked up his type from under his stand; and, if he was there to see, I put the good type in his case and the broken ones among the 'hell matter,' and if he wasn't there to see I dumped it all with the 'pi' on the imposing stone—for that was the furtive fashion of the cub, and I was a cub. I wetted down the paper Saturdays, I turned it Sundays-for this was a country weekly; I rolled. I washed the rollers. I washed the forms. I folded the papers, I carried them around at dawn Thursday mornings. I enveloped the papers that were for the mail—we had a hundred town subscribers and 350 country ones; the town subscribers paid in groceries and the country ones in cabbages and cordwood -when they paid at all, which was merely sometimes, and then we always stated the fact in the paper, and gave them a puff; and if we forgot it they stopped the paper. Every man on the town list helped edit the thing—that is, he gave orders as to how it was to be edited; dictated its opinions, marked out its course for it, and every time the boss failed to connect he stopped his paper. We were just infested with critics, and we tried to satisfy them all over. We had one subscriber who paid cash, and he was more trouble to us than all the rest. He bought us, once a year, body and soul, for $2. He used to modify our politics every which way, and he made us change our religion four times in five years. If we ever tried to reason with him he would threaten to stop his paper, and, of course, that meant bankruptey and destruction. That man used to write articles a column and a half long, leaded long primer, and sign them 'Junius,' or Veritas, or Vox Populi, or some other high-sounding rot; and then, after it was set up, he would come in and say he had changed his mind-which was a gilded figure of speech, because he hadn't any—and order it to be left out. We couldn't stand such a waste as that; we couldn't afford 'bogus' in that office; so we always took the leads out, altered the signature, credited the article to the rival paper in the next village, and put it in. Well, we did have one or two kinds of 'bogus.' Whenever there was a barbecue, or a circus, or a baptizing, we knocked off for half a day; and then to make up for short matter we would turn ads —turn over the whole page and duplicate it. The other bogus was deep philosophical stuff, which we judged nobody ever read, so we kept a galley of it standing and kept on slapping the same old batches of it in, every now and then, till it got dangerous. Also, in the early days of the telegraph we used to economize on the news. We picked out the items that were pointless and barren of information and stood on a galley, and changed the dates and localities and used them over and over again till the public interest in them was worn to the bone. We marked the ads, but we seldom paid any attention to the marks afterward; so the life of a 'td' ad and a 'tf' ad was equally eternal. I have seen a 'td' notice of a Sheriff's sale still booming serenely along two years after the sale was over, the Sheriff dead, and the whole circumstances be-come ancient history. Most of the yearly ads were patent-medicine stereotypes, and we used to fence with them. Life was easy with us; if we pied a form we suspended till next week, and we always suspended every now and then when the fishing was good, and explained it by the illness of the editor—a paltry excuse, because that kind of a paper was just as well off with a sick editor as a well one, and better off with a dead one than with either of them. he was full of blessed egotism and placid selfimportance, but he didn't know as much as a three-cm quad. He never set any type except in the rush of the last day, and then he would smouch all the poetry and leave the rest to "jeff" for the solid takes. He wrote with impressive flatulence and scaring confi-dence upon the vastest subjects; but puffing alms gifts of wedding-cake, salty ice-cream, abnormal watermelons, and sweet potatoes the size of your leg was his best hold. He was always a poet—a kind of poet of the Carrier's Address breed—and whenever his intel-lect suppurated and he read the result to the printers and asked for their opinion they were very frank and straightforward about it. They generally scraped their rules on the boxes all thetime he was reading, and called it "hog wash" when he got through. All this was thirty-five years ago, when the man who could set 700 an hour could put on just as many airs as he wanted to; and if these New York men who recently on a wager set 2 (000 an hour solid minion

a wager set 2.000 an hour solid minion for four hours on a stretch had appeared in that office they would have been re-ceived as accomplishers of the supreme-ly impossible, and drenched with hospitable beer till the brewery was bankrupt.

"I can see that printing office of prehistoric times yet, with its horse bills on the walls, its 'd' boxes clogged with tallow, because we always stood the candle in the 'k' box nights, its towel, which was not considered soiled until it could stand alone, and other signs and symbols that marked the establishment of that kind in the Mississippi Valley; and I can see also the tramping 'jour' who flitted by in the summer and tarried a day, with his wallet stuffed with one shirt and a batful of bandbills; or if he couldn't get any type to set he would do a temperance lecture. His way of life was simple, his needs not complex; all he wanted was plate and bed and money enough to get drunk on, and he was satisfied. But it may be, as I have said, to at I am among strangers, and sing the glories of a forgotten age to un:amiliar ears, so I will make even' and stop."

Mr. Clemens' trade slang told with effeet, and the boys gave him three cheers at the close.
